

Manifesto:

I am YE Fan, a second year physical natsci from Pembroke College. I intend to run for the position of secretary of the Scientific Society.

University of Cambridge, one of the most renowned research universities in the world, not only provides tertiary education, but also has been the home for groups of researchers and erudite scholars for centuries. These people have been heavily involved in the latest research studies and have profound knowledge and insights in their respective field. It will be a shame for us not to listen to their ideas and learn from their experiences during our undergraduate years at Cambridge. This is one of my incentives to get involved in Scisoc, a society dedicated in organising scientific talks at the university.

Personally, I greatly enjoyed scientific talks and accumulated a lot if-not-useful-at-least-interesting knowledge. At this age, when disciplines are getting more connected than ever, when the lines defining subjects are blurring away, knowing bits of scientific facts outside your own concentration can be very benefiting. This is also part of my motivation to get involved.

I have been helping the Scisoc events and attending meetings before coming up for election. Therefore, I am familiar enough with how the society operates and what duties are involved. I would love to contribute my part to assist the elected presidents to organise more activities and run the society into greater popularity.

My past responsibilities such as CUALA IT officer and ADC play lighting technicians demonstrate myself being a committed and patient individual. Together with the enthusiasm I have for Scisoc, I would be a suitable candidate for the secretary role. Thank you.
